At the same time that I got my first car, my best friend got his first car and it was the same make and model! His was a little newer but mine had a faster engine. In the end, I got mine back from my brother and we mixed and matched parts to build a newer and nicer one that was fast.

Not being mechanics and having no tools, we ran into some difficulty. I think we ended-up selling or giving the pair of cars to our buddies at the automotive tech school after they were passed around our group of friends.
