I loved this car. It was my dream to have one and it was a lot of fun and fast to drive. People found it unusual and wanted to talk about it. Girls wanted to go for rides. There wasn't too much room for cargo or passengers, but that's the price you pay I guess.

The thing about it was if I could keep it operational, it seemed much cooler than it really was. I had a job delivering travel documents and missed a stop sign. Since I was on the clock and working, the company's insurance policy paid a very, very fair price for it to shut me up and settle. I gave the bigger engine and 5-speed to my buddy for his. Never did bring it back to life.
