Inspired by the awesomeness of my stepmother's 280zx, I thought I found something even better! It was similar in size and shape but it had a special lightweight engine and flip-up headlights (for improved aerodynamics). In hindsight, I should have bought a Z but this thing was also very fun.

It was the nicest car I had ever owned at the time. It was upgraded with fresh paint and wheels from a newer model. The stereo was alright. Eventually the rings started to go and the thing would blow smoke and drink oil. I couldn't afford to fix it so I gave it to my sister and asked her to get rid of it for me.
